HAPPENINGS

J. T. McKinley, one of our best and staunchest Presbyterians, attended Presbytery in Taylorsville last week.

"Like Drowned Rat."

A perfect down-pour of rain fell in this section Sunday afternoon, causing many, who chanced to be away from home, to arrive at their different destinations at a late hour, looking, as the old adage says, "like drowned rats."

Appreciates Compliments.

In reply to the Dry Ridge correspondent's item of praise, will say that I do feel complimented and appreciate beyond measure both the words of the correspondent and those of Mr. Harrickman, but since reading the many good and talented letters from The Jeffersonian's staff of correspondents, fear that my ability is overestimated.

Entertained.

Mrs. J. Boston and family had as all-day guests last week, Mrs. S. B. Clark and daughter, Miss Winnie, and Paul Wayne Boston, of Routt, Jesse Boston, of Kane Run, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jewell, daughter and son of Elk Creek, Mrs. Eliza McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith and son; as afternoon guests, Mrs. Lee VanDyke, of Taylorsville, M. G. Boston, of Routt, Mrs. Mollie VanDyke, Mrs. Richard VanDyke, daughter and little son, Mrs. Robert McDonald and Mrs. Bud McDonald.

Benefit of Library.

Quite a large number of people gathered at Carriers Chapel schoolhouse Sunday afternoon and night to attend an ice cream supper which was given for the benefit of a library for the school. We were unable to get a report of the amount obtained, but think it must have proven satisfactory as all the refreshments were used and this to my idea gives proof of the success of any occasion where refreshments are sold especially where they are donated as lavishly as in this neighborhood.

Carpet Ball Shower.

Several from here attended a surprise "Carpet Ball Shower," which was tendered to Mrs. Roy Reid at her home, near Routt, on the afternoon of Oct. 2, it being the twenty-fourth anniversary of her birthday.

Quite a number were invited, but owing to the inclemency of the weather, many were detained at home. Those present were Mrs. D. F. Wigginton, Mrs. Sophia Shake, Mrs. Joseph Carrithers, Mrs. Jake Fleck, Mrs. Arch Tennill, Mrs. M. G. Boston, Miss Annie Reid, Mrs. Roy Reid, of Routt, Mrs. Howard Smith, Mrs. J. Boston and daughters, Misses Susie, Ida and Pearl, of this place. As Miss Annie Reid and sister, Mrs. Boston, had made all arrangements, Mrs. Reid was wholly unprepared for the occasion as was clearly shown by the expression of surprise which was depicted on her countenance as one after another appeared on the scene. Notwithstanding the steady flow of conversation, the many jests and quick retorts, which proved to be one of the principal features of the afternoon, the nimble fingers never ceased, but seemed rather to keep time to the hum of voices, as could be testified by the number of balls, which were quickly formed into shape. As the afternoon waned, all repaired to the dining-room, where refreshments were served and then departed for home, where in after years the memory of this gathering will remain a most pleasant one.

Death of Little Son.

Since writing the above have heard that the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Russell is dead. Have not heard any of the particulars excepting that this death occurred about 10 o'clock this morning (Tuesday).

DEMOCRATS

Of Jefferson County Hold Interesting Meeting—Other Meetings Called For.

The Jefferson County Democratic Club met at its headquarters in Louisville last Saturday, with President W. H. Able presiding. Different parts of the county were well represented, and much interest manifested. A resolution was passed opposing the nomination of Judge Robert Bingham for Chancellor by both parties. A resolution was also passed upon the death of some of the club's most faithful members, Mr. Steve Beard, and a lovely $10 floral design was sent to the deceased's family to be placed upon his grave in token of the members' sympathy and friendship.

Several political speakings are being arranged by the club for different precincts in Jefferson county. On Wednesday, October 9, a meeting will be held at Union State at Fern Creek, and on Saturday, October 14, a magisterial meeting will be held at St. Matthews. A speaking will be held at Jeffersontown, Saturday, October 14. A meeting is also being arranged for Middletown next Saturday and other places in the county at different times. This club will meet every Saturday from now until after the November election.

School Committee At Work.

Messrs. John M. McFerran, of Louisville, and E. H. Sprowl, of Jeffersontown, of the Rural School Committee of the Louisville Commercial Club, were invited to Shepherdsville Thursday of last week and to Irvington Tuesday of this week in the interest of the schools. At Shepherdsville a large crowd greeted them at the courthouse and much interest was shown in the talks that were made by Messrs. McFerran and Sprowl. At Irvington the speaking was held in Rev. L. K. May's church where a large crowd gathered. Mr. May was formerly of Jeffersontown and gave the gentlemen a hearty welcome. Great interest is being taken all over the state in the work of the committee, which is planning several other trips at an early date.

CAPT. N. T. RAGLAND

Prominent Citizen and Mexican War Veteran
Passes Away at Home of Daughter.

Capt. N. T. Ragland died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lewis Fullenwider, at Mechanicsville, Ill., Sunday night of infirmities incident to old age. He was eighty-five years of age, and while deeply deplored his death was not unexpected, owing to his advanced age.

Capt. Ragland was a member of the prominent Ragland family of Jefferson county, who have been leaders in county affairs for many years.

He was a Mexican war veteran and a Democrat of strongest principles. Capt. Ragland was Magistrate in Fisherville years ago, having the distinction of being the first officer to serve after that magisterial district was formed.

Deceased leaves a wife, one son and two daughters, the son being Mr. Ed. Ragland, who holds a responsible position with the Adams Express Co., at Louisville. He was a brother of Mr. J. O. Ragland, of this place.

The funeral services were conducted at the home of his sister and the interment took place at Mechanicsville.

Notice.

Bills for papers delivered by me are remitted the first of each month, as we do not extend credit to any one for a longer period of time. Now, all who have not hitherto done so, will greatly oblige if they will pay their bills before the tenth of the month. I have to make prompt settlement each month with the publishers, and I expect customers to do the same by me.

WELFORD ALCOCK.

THE CROSS SCHOOL.

Mrs. L. B. Cross, who has charge of The Cross School in Louisville, has received good results from advertising in The Jeffersonian, and writes the following concerning her school:

"Our school promotes the largest enrollment in the history of the school. Our boys' department, which contains boys preparing for university entrance, affords interesting work.

Our comparatively large cooking school, our French, Spanish and Portuguese languages taught by a most interesting man who has his A. B. from the University of Barcelona and four years of training in American colleges; History department in charge of two brilliant students of history experienced in teaching; Mathematics in charge of a man of brilliant achievements, makes our school attractive to progressive business men whose sons and daughters are seeking more than the usual education.

The outlook is gratifying and The Jeffersonian was a factor in securing present results. Accept our appreciation." Very truly yours,

Mrs. L. B. Cross
324 Fourth Ave.

THE JEFFERSONIAN

JEFFERSONTOWN, KY.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1911.

Notice to M. E. Sunday-School.

On last Sunday morning Dr. Bruner and Mr. Nugent, of the Jefferson County Sunday-School Association, assisted the superintendent and teachers in grading the Methodist Sunday-school. Heretofore we have had children running in and from three to eleven years and young men and young ladies in the same classes. Now, we have placed all in proper classes according to the system of a well-governed Sunday-school, and propose to advance the pupils as they grow older or become more proficient.

We expect greater results than ever before, and this notice in the paper is for the purpose of letting those who have not been attending regularly, know that we have adopted a system for work that will appeal to all really interested in the cause and to give them an invitation to join us. We want all members of the church, men, women, and children, young and old, who are not members of the school, to come and unite with us.

We are going to have a cradle roll, and ask all parents of children running in ages from birth to three years old to hand their names to the superintendent at once. A Beginners' Class has been organized, and we want the children from 3 to 5 years in this class.

If you are a Methodist, or if you are not a member of any Sunday-school or church, we want you to join our school. We also ask the cooperation of all of our old members. Come on time; be in your place promptly at 9:45 every Sunday morning. Let's all pull together—in all directions—and then we shall accomplish great things in the Master's cause.

J. C. ALOOCK, Supl.

A Card.

To the many friends, who so kindly received us and made our short stay among them so pleasant, we desire to express our heartfelt thanks. We have known, only when the church register was consulted, that we were members of the Methodist church. It would have been pleasant to have labored in this field this year. To our superiors we bow and hasten to go to the field assigned us, praying that the Father will help us in our feeble way to be of some benefit to that church. It would be much more difficult to leave the work were it not for the splendid man who succeeds us, Rev. Virgil Elgin. We bespeak for him the hearty cooperation of the entire membership. His lovely family will be a distinct gain to the entire work. Brother Elgin is the man for the place and will, with the help of the membership, bring things to pass.

Sincerely,
W. P. GORDON.

Notice to Subscribers.

On account of receiving so many subscriptions to The Jeffersonian during the past year, when we have been almost impossible to serve every one on the list correctly. Many times a name was sent in with the wrong address, or where the paper was going in one name another name of the family was sent in. This results in the subscriber not getting proper credit and receiving two papers instead of one. You are requested to notify us immediately if you are receiving two papers, or if your paper is being delayed from any cause. Call The Jeffersonian over the Cumberland phone (free service with entire county), or drop us a postal card. The favor will be greatly appreciated.

Important Land Sale.

An auction sale of interest to citizens of this community is advertised by E. R. Sprowl to take place Saturday afternoon, Oct. 7, when he will sell the improved property of W. T. Linder, three acres for J. C. Alock and another nice piece of property in Livingston Heights. All of the property is very desirable and the location is as good as can be found. It will be well to not overlook this sale.

DRANE

Elected By Fiscal Court As County Engineer.

Warm Discussion About Location of County Poorhouse—Will Come Up at Next Meeting.

Merritt Drane, a Republican in politics, was elected county engineer Tuesday by the Fiscal Court for a term of two years beginning next January. The salary is $5,000 a year. Mr. Drane was elected for one year last October, defeating Russell Gaines, county surveyor. Mr. Drane, who was again placed before the court, but the vote stood five to four in favor of Drane. Immediately after the routine business of considerable nature was disposed of, Magistrate Gifford offered a resolution to the effect that Magistrate Drane, the present county engineer, be elected for two years. Magistrate Wheeler moved that the name of Russell Gaines be substituted for that of Merritt Drane and the election be made for one year instead of two years. The substitute was lost by the following vote:

Yeas: Magistrates Wheeler, Drane, Berry and Judge Weissinger.

Noes: Magistrates Dorsey, Robb, Hollis, Vogt, Gifford.

The Gifford motion then prevailed by the same vote; those who had voted against the substitute voting for the original motion.

Mr. Drane immediately offered his bond with a surety company and all the magistrates voted for its approval. Judge Weissinger had his vote recorded against the approval.

The matter of the location of the new poorhouse building was discussed at length. A delegation of donors or non-citizens about Jeffersonian was on hand to advocate that the new buildings be erected on the present site of the institution. Prof. H. N. Reubel made a lengthy talk in which he said that the present location was as good as could be had elsewhere and that Jeffersonian seemed to be the only bidder for the poorhouse. He said the report that there would not be sufficient water at the present site was without foundation. Hon. L. C. Owens also made a short talk in behalf of the present location.

Magistrate Wheeler moved that Capt. Branton B. Davis, the architect, be instructed to advertise for bids for the erection of the proposed new building on the present site of the poorhouse. Magistrates Hollis and Robb pleaded for more time in order that the water supply might be investigated. They contended that a modern building would require much more water than the present buildings. Magistrate Hollis moved to table Magistrate Wheeler's motion, which action carried by the following vote:

For the Hollis motion—Magistrates Dorsey, Robb, Hollis, Dacher, Vogt and Berry.

Against the Hollis motion—Magistrates Wheeler and Gifford.

The matter probably will be brought up again at the next regular meeting of the court.

The motion that the court send a request signed by the members to the Secretary of Agriculture to send an expert on soils to Louisville was adopted. This expert will, it is said, give free information to Jefferson county farmers as to drainage and soils.

A LETTER FROM CHARLIE WHITE-MOON.

To the people of Jeffersonian and vicinity: Dear Friends—Mr. J. B. Ford has been laid up for some days with a trouble in his head, and some of the cheerful knockers in the neighborhood have been heard to say that it was his old trouble returned. Well, I have just had a letter from him stating that his old trouble is perfectly cured, that this trouble is in no way connected with his old disease of which my remedies cured him, but is of an entirely different nature. I am publishing this in order to set the knockers right, as people are found in every community that are ready and willing to try down, but NEVER willing to try to build up. I don't know who started the lie—don't care. All I want is to set the HONEST people right and let them know the truth. I have many enemies among doctors? They are the only enemies I have; they are the kind who don't want ANY-ONE to get well, unless they have something to do with it. Mr. J. B. Ford knows how he feels, knows what his trouble is; knows whether he was cured or not, and any one is at liberty to call him and get a personal statement regarding his present trouble and the wonderful cure he received from the use of my remedies, the God-given Roots and Herbs. I would consider this matter as entirely beneath my notice and the dignity of my calling, would not have given it a thought, had it not been for the request of Mr. Ford's family that I set the matter right through the columns of your home paper.

FAIRS FOR HONESTY AND A FAIR DEAL.

CHARLIE WHITE-MOON.

THE HUMAN SKIN.

Changes in Its Hues That Have Come With the Ages.

COLOR A MATTER OF CLIMATE.

Man's Original Shade Is Believed to Have Been a Brownish Yellow—The Same Forces That Made Man White, Black and Yellow Still Operating.

Man's original color and the cause of the changes in that color to the various hues that mark the skins of the different races have long been a study among men of science. The theory of Professor Lionel Lyde, an English scientist, is that, whatever the color of primitive man in the beginning, the conditions of life during the glacial period were such that uniformity of results must have been produced. Nearly every anthropologist is ready to admit now a common origin for all mankind. Where man originated is not known—very likely in southern Asia, possibly in Africa, certainly not in Europe, they say. His original color is supposed to have been a sort of brownish yellow not like any of the colors of mankind today, and scientists call him, for the sake of calling him something, a Codwana.

He lived in southern latitudes. This, they think, is evident. Then came migrations, and then, Professor Lyde believes, the variations of color began. Some turned white, some turned black, some brown and some yellow, all according to the climate in which they found themselves.

Climate influences worked directly and indirectly. In the tropics the skin and the intestines perform work in temperate zones is thrown on the lungs. So when man found himself in cooler lands the increased activity of the lungs, together with the lessened light and heat, favored lightening of the skin. When he found himself in hotter climates the increased activity of the liver and the presence of great light favored a dark skin.

As the conditions of race are pretty well discarded, for men of the same race, under differing conditions, would come to be outwardly very different. This even in Africa, which everybody thinks of as the land of blacks, black is not at all the universal color. In the Sudan, where there are great light and little humidity and no shade, the men are very black. Elsewhere in Africa, where there are forest, more humidity and less light, though about equal heat, the color is brown and even yellow.

As primitive man went on his way over the globe he adapted himself to the conditions he found. Professor Lyde thinks that it is light and not heat which is injurious. There are in the tropics dangerous rays which must be stopped, and they were stopped by the darkening of the skin. Since lack of moisture also tends to produce a dark skin, it is found that in rainy countries the people are fairer than in places where there are long and frequent droughts.

The race, then, that found a home in moderate and damp climates turned whiter and whiter. It is only in such climates that white skin can endure, and presumably, if the present white race was turned into a different part of the world for many hundreds of years, the whiteness of skin would be retained only. Perhaps, since the white man is spreading over the world today, it would be fair to say it will, in such cases, be lost, the whiteness being retained only in climates that have the conditions under which the race was first bleached.

Latitude of light and little humidity made black. Trade winds and little humidity gave the tinge of brown to the subtropical Mediterranean people. These conditions, which Professor Lyde puts down as the result of "settling down grass lands" in temperate latitudes.

The yellow man is the product of the grass lands, with lack of humidity and seasonal extremes of temperature. The color a man exposed to such conditions would naturally take would be one which conserves heat nearly as well as white, but which also protects from light, for which combination yellow was the best, or red. The normal color of these folk of the grass lands would be changed by special local conditions, such as the presence of mountains or proximity to the sea. The mountaineers of Asia and the maritime Mongolians are lighter in color than their brothers of the inland plains.

Professor Lyde, therefore, skin color is entirely a matter of climate. It is a well established phenomenon now because the different portions of the human race live segregated for thousands of years in special areas, but the same forces that made men white and black and yellow are operating today, slowly but surely. Men who change their dwelling places will still, after hundreds of generations, change also their skins as they did in the epoch of the first migrations—New York Times.

DO YOU RECALL THIS OLD SONG?

I am growing old and weary and I can work no more;
I have laid the rusty blade hoe to rest;
Old mass and old missus they are sleeping side by side,
And their spirits now are roaming with the best.
Senses are changed about the place; the daisies are gone,
And I cannot hear them singing in the cane;
And the only thing that's left me in this old dog dog mine,
Is "The Little Ole Log Cabin in the Lane."

Chorus.
The hinges they are rusty and the chimney's stumbled down,
And the roof lets in the sunshine and the rain;
But the angels they'll watch o'er me when I lay down to rest,
In "The Little Ole Log Cabin in the Lane."

When the daisies used to gather round my door;
Misses used to sing and dance while I played my old banjo;
But alas! I cannot do any more,
The chimney is all falling and the roof has tumbled in,
And I am just as long around here to remain,
But the angels they'll watch o'er me when I lay down to rest,
In "The Little Ole Log Cabin in the Lane."

Dr. toughness now is covered o'er dat led us round the hill,
And the fences are all going to decay,
Ain't creek has all dried up where we used to go to milk;
De time has turned its course another way,
I ain't got time to stay here, but what little time I got
I'll try to be contented and remain
Till death shall call my dog and me to find a better home.
Dau dat "Little Ole Log Cabin in the Lane."

ANNOUNCEMENT.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

We are authorized to announce HON. L. C. OWINGS as a candidate for reelection to the office of Representative from the Legislative District of Jefferson county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

HEALTH OFFICER PLEASED WITH VISIT.

County Health Officer B. M. Smock was in Jeffersontown last Friday and informed The Jeffersonian that he was pleased with the sanitary condition in this vicinity. He said that our public school, since it has been remodeled, is in fine shape, but suggested that gravel be placed in front of the door in order to keep the children from carrying mud into the house on rainy days. Dr. Smock reported that he found the county poor house here in a better sanitary condition than he has found it for the past twelve years that he has visited it. This is a nice compliment for the superintendent, Mr. Clyde Tucker. While everything seemed to be in a fine shape here Dr. Smock found a few bug holes that should be removed and suggested other things that will be to the best interest of the town from a health stand point.

LEAVE OUT POLITICS? HARDLY!

There is much being said these days about taking our public institutions, etc., out of politics. When you do this you will have to leave men out — and this can not very well be done. The attempt to secure the nomination of Judge Bingham for Chancellor upon a nonpartisan ticket is absurd. Judge Bingham has made a splendid official, equally liked by Democrats and Republicans, but the time has not arrived when people will turn down a party nominee for a nonpartisan candidate just because he has been efficient. We are not saying that it should not be true, but it is not true. If the people want Judge Bingham re-elected — and we believe as many do as not — let him make the race either on the Republican ticket or the Democratic ticket. Then he may be elected — not otherwise. It is almost impossible to take politics out of anything that men have anything to do with, from the fact that they lean toward one side or the other. True a larger number vote independently, as they should — but this fact does not do away with the inalienable desire, which is bred into every man's blood, to support either one party or the other.

NEEDED WORK FOR FISCAL COURT TO DO.

The Jeffersonian has frequently called the attention of the Fiscal Court to the many dangerous embankments along many of our public highways. Another person came near losing his life one day last week as a result of his horse falling into one of these death traps. We are called upon nearly every week to chronicle some accident resulting from a vehicle going down one of these embankments. We could name a large number of them in the country that need immediate attention. This is a thing that the Fiscal Court should give its attention if the members of this august body desire to protect the lives of the travelers along the public roads. Quite a number of these embankments are near railroad tracks, where the trains invariably pass just as you are caught in one of the "traps." The road is very narrow, of course, (just like most of the roads in Jefferson county); your horse scares at the train, of course; he jumps to one side about three feet and down you go, sometimes thirty or forty feet. Result: Broken limbs, neck, etc. At a very little cost this could be prevented, if the members of the Fiscal Court would do their duty. It is a thing the people should take up and demand.

CHILDREN SHOULD ATTEND HIGH SCHOOL.

At a cost of several thousand dollars annually the Jefferson County Board of Education provides for the free tuition of the graduates of our country schools in the city high school. It is a sad fact, however, that only a few of the country children are permitted by their parents to take advantage of this schooling. There is a reason for it, of course. Some have one reason and some have another. It is more often the case, however, where the parents keep their children at home through lack of interest in education. They are not educated themselves, and, as they say, have always gotten along pretty well — their children can do the same. Do you wonder at the low standing of Kentucky educationally when the state provides for the education of the children and the parents will not take advantage of it? About the only way to raise Kentucky's standard of education is to have compulsory school attendance. You say we have it already. Have we? The country child, under the law, must attend the free public school at least five consecutive weeks during the school term. That's all. Do you think that is compulsory attendance? We think not. The child is not compelled to attend high school at all, although the state has provided for free tuition. In drafting the law we are to be presented to the next Legislature these are a few facts the promoters should think about.

"The 23rd Sam."

1. My wife is my boss, I shall not delay.
She makes me lie down behind the bed when the swell company comes, and she leadeth me behind her up Main street.
2. She restoreth my pocket book after she has spent all its contents on holiday skirts and theatre tickets — she leadeth me up the main aisle at church for her new hat's sake.
3. Yea, though I walk more than half the night through dark rooms with a crying baby, I will get no rest, for she is behind me, her broomstick and hatpin tie do, everything else but comfort me.
4. She prepareth a cold snack, for me, then maketh a bee line for an aid society supper. She annihilateth my head with the rolling pin occasionally. My arms runneth over with blunders before she is half done her shopping.
5. Surely her dressmakers' and millinery bills shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the house with my wife forever. — Ex.

First American Newspaper.

The first newspaper published in America was issued in Boston on September 25, 1689. It was "printed by R. Pierce for Benjamin Harris." In the first issue the publisher proclaimed that the paper "shall be furnished once a month (or if a Glut or Occurrence happen, oftener) with an account of such considerable things as have occurred unto our notice; to give a faithful relation of all such things, and to enlighten the public as to the occurrences of Divine Providence." It gave a summary of the important news of the time and was quite readable if not exactly spicy. To us it would appear a very harmless sheet; but the authorities of that day were very rigid in their censorship of the press, and after a few issues Mr. Harris' paper was suppressed because "it called out contrary to law, and contained reflections of a very high nature."

The Republicans of Louisville and Jefferson county met in convention Thursday evening of last week and nominated Judge Robert Worth Bingham for Chancellor, named candidates for the Legislature, Park Board, Magistrate and Constable, and then adjourned until October 18, when a decision will be reached upon the advisability of nominating for the General County.

The only flurry in the convention came over an effort to nominate candidates for the General Council at once, but when the vote came that motion was rejected by a large majority, as was also a motion of Mr. J. D. Reid that the convention adjourn until October 12 instead of October 18.

Judge Bingham was nominated for Chancellor by acclamation after Attorney Ben S. Washer had fully explained to the delegates that if the Democratic party refused to make a joint nomination for this office and thus take a step toward taking the judiciary out of politics, Judge Bingham will not make the race.

The sentiment of the convention was heartily in accord with the proposition and Judge Bingham was named without a dissenting vote. It is believed that the Democrats will not make a joint nomination of Mr. Bingham.

When the convention was called to order by Mr. Harry Barrett, chairman of the City and County Committee, little time was wasted in getting down to business. Mr. Charles F. Ogden was elected temporary chairman and Mr. Clarence Dwidie was elected secretary.

Hummel, chairman of the present board of trustees, called the meeting to order, and Mr. Chas. Burkhardt was chosen temporary chairman. Mr. Rufus Smith was selected to act as secretary.

A large crowd was present and much interest manifested. Nominations for town marshal were taken up first, and Mr. B. F. Tyler, the incumbent, was the only one mentioned for the place. He was elected unanimously.

The following gentlemen were selected to go on the ticket as candidates for town trustees: W. A. Wheeler, C. D. Tyler, D. A. Davis, Wm. Leatherman and Geo. Brindley. Other men were nominated, but withdrew.

Averts Awful Tragedy.

Timely advice given Mrs. C. Wiloughby, of Marengo, Wis., (R. No. 1) prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. Doctors had said her frightful cough was a "consumption" cough and could do little to help her. At last my remedies failed, her aunt urged her to take Dr. King's New Discovery. "I have been using it for some time," she wrote "and the awful cough has almost gone. It also saved my little boy when taken with a severe bronchial trouble." This matchless medicine has no equal for throat and lung trouble. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

Stick To It.

John Wannamaker, the big Philadelphia merchant, says: "Advertising is not an enterprise for a quitter. If there is one enterprise on earth a quitter should leave alone it is advertising. To make a success of advertising one must be prepared to stick like a barnacle to a boat's bottom. He should know before he begins that he must spend money; lots of it. Somebody must tell him that he can not hope to obtain results commensurate with his expenditures early in the game. Advertising doesn't jerk it pulls it. It begins very gently at first, but the pull is steady. It increases day by day and year by year until it exerts an irresistible power."

BOYS

In Jefferson County Should Enter Corn Clubs.

By Isaac W. Moremen. Writes of Results at State Fair Among Boys Who Contested For Prizes.

Valley Station, Sept. 25.—There are about 10,000 children in Jefferson county within the school age, and in this number there must be at least 2,000 boys who are of the right age (over ten and under sixteen years old) to enter the boys' corn club. Of this 2,000 there must be at least 500 who are so situated and whose parents are perfectly able to let them have an acre each to enter the contest for the prizes, which will be offered by the State Fair next year for the best ten ears and by the State Corn Show later in December or January of 1912. There will be prizes offered both at the fair and the corn show worth contending for.

In white corn this year Stark Bros., Boston, Nelson county, Ky., won the $25 prize, and C. R. Lovelace, also of Boston, and who had two entries, 2 and 3 prizes, $15 and $10, of the McFerran special. In yellow corn Geo. R. Kainer, Jr., of Lexington, won first, $25; and Stark Bros., of Boston, the others. There was only one contestant from Jefferson county, Geo. Nicholson, Jr., Anchorage, of the McFerran special. For the Jefferson county special Edward D. Gallinger, Valley Station, first, $5; R. B. Fenley, Valley Station, second, $3; Ben Hardaway, third, $2.

If the boys want to enter the State contest, which comes off in January, they must have at least sixty bushels of corn per acre. The time to get ready for next year is now. Get your parents to allow you to raise an acre of corn next year; plow it and set it in this fall; sow it in early; then next spring plow and prepare it early and plant your corn early and then get your entry blanks at least a month before the fair comes off and fill out and send to the secretary. Then put your corn you expect to exhibit at the fair grounds at least two days before the fair commences and make at least two entries in each class. The one on the best single ear of $5. The secretary and fair officials are very busy and it is not best to put off till the last minute it can be done, but make the entries early and get the exhibits in place early. The corn was closed to exhibits at 9 a. m. Sept. 11th, as the judges had then commenced their work.

Mr. Clore, who moved from Jefferson county, Ky., to Indiana, is considered the corn king and has taken many prizes and of large amounts. He would, no doubt, have done as well if he had stayed in Kentucky. Kentucky is as good as the best of Jefferson county is among the best counties of the State, and South Jefferson from the city limits to Salt river, is one of the best parts of Jefferson county.

At any rate, there were more entries in the Jefferson county corn clubs from South Jefferson than from all the rest of the county, and the South Jefferson boys got the prizes.

Boys, send your names to Mr. Stivers, select your acre and get busy with it now. Do your duty and next year the Jefferson county boys ought to number at least 500 and get all the prizes. There will be prizes worth winning.

If you want to win on ten ears or single ears probably the Johnson County White or the Boone County White are as good as you can plant. If you want to win on greatest yield per acre use Batt's prolific or some other prolific. I am glad to say all of these varieties were successfully grown in South Jefferson this year. Some of the prolific had as high as four good ears to the stalk. The boys of Jefferson, get busy; get an acre and win all the prizes at the fair and at the state corn show in 1912.

Very truly yours,
HORACE W. MOREMEN.

Feed for Work Animals.

Any farm animal that does a large amount of work and would want a good supply of feed. Hard work makes a good appetite whether the animal be a work horse pulling a plow or a milk cow filling a pail twice a day. Both are machines and both must have fuel. Upon the quantity and utilization of the fuel will depend the amount of work done. A good milk cow must be a good feeder and then she must have a good supply of the right kind of feed.

GERALD'S WIFE

A Misunderstanding and a Happy Explanation.

By ISOLA FORRESTER.

Broderick swung off the 4:35 express, walked quickly up the steps leading from the railroad platform and took his first look at Pineville. Those who lived in Pineville proper were content to call it Pineville. Gerald had written that they did not live in Pineville proper, but in Pineville-by-the-Sea, otherwise Pineville Improper.

All that Broderick saw were pines, plenty of them, a flat white ribbon of roadway and a bit of a postoffice, snugly situated in the midst of the nearest clump of pines. He stepped into the postoffice as the central spot of civilization. Some one was stamping letters behind the glass louvered door, a girl with smooth dark hair. Beatrice had smooth dark hair.

He watched the girl stamping letters with interest and wondered why some one did not tell her to wear smooth dark hair in two soft braids around her head, crown fashion, as Beatrice did.

"Where do the Vaughns live, please?" he asked faintly, when the stamping ceased.

"The Vaughns? Oh, Mr. Gerald Vaughn and his wife? It's a brown house down near the shore, with a wide veranda and a funny roof. About a mile straight down the road."

A wide veranda and a funny roof. The road straight down the shore. He wondered how Gerald's wife liked it. Beatrice was artistic, but not artistically eccentric. She had a horror of things called bohemia, so called bohemia, and yet she had married Gerald. And Gerald's brother knew that Gerald was utterly odd, bizarre and bohemian, so called.

He walked on down the flat white ribbon roadway and wondered whether he would find her like that. He had not been in a position to ask her for his wife then, but he had thought a girl like Beatrice had meant more by a kiss, a hand clasp, a few vague words of understanding, than other girls. He had thought she might wait until next summer. And now, in April, he had returned to New York, to learn that Gerald was in disgrace, had married on impulse, eloped to Pineville-by-the-Sea, N. C., and his wife was Beatrice's mother had said they were penniless. Gerald's father had remarked that he didn't give a rap. They could exist upon love and studio string.

More or less for Beatrice's sake and a little for Gerald's, Gerald's brother had taken it upon himself to visit the bride couple and help Gerald. Smooth taking his own love, he had made up his mind that as long as Beatrice had married a Vaughn she should not suffer from it.

There was no bell at the door of the little brown house with the funny roof. It was merely a bungalow in weathered shingles, and he rapped on the door lustily until it opened and Beatrice stood before him.

She was the blessed damozel type, yet. Her smooth dark hair was wound about her head in just the same crown fashion, and she wore a short dark blue linen skirt and a white shirt. The sleeves were rolled to her elbows, and from her finger tips to elbow dimples there was four spry little face so soon or alone. Neither had he expected her to act as she did. The color rose in her cheeks, tipping even her ears with pink. It was an odd habit. He remembered it.

"I thought you were in London," she said.

"You don't give a fellow a very decent welcome after he's traveled from London to this wilderness to say congratulations."

She hesitated into the hall after her. She hesitated and laughed, looking at her bound hands.

"I can't shake hands with you, and—the biscuits are in the kitchen. Shall I have to watch them? Do you mind coming out to the kitchen?"

He didn't mind. There appeared to be only three rooms—the studio string room, the dining room and the kitchen. Collapsible ready-in-a-minute studio divans were in the sitting room and dining room in line of bedrooms. It was all charmingly, most uncomfortably odd, bizarre and bohemian.

"Where's Gerald?" he asked when he had found a chair in the kitchen. Beatrice knelt beside the stove to look at the biscuits. He could not see her face.

"He went to the postoffice for the last mail. You must have missed him."

"Well, what ever made him come to this corner?"

"Oh, because it was the chance of something definite, you know? Don't you know?" she added quickly, seeing the puzzled look on his face. "Well, a rose—"

Gerald's chum, Netherly Ames, broke all to pieces last fall from overwork and so on, and he was ordered down here. And he couldn't afford to come and stay indefinitely, so he pulled a few wires, and things happened. He was made postmaster here at Pineville. And he got lonesome and healthy and worked again a month ago, so Gerald's in his place, and he's in New York. Don't you see? It was really very definite and businesslike and right under the circumstances."

"Oh, certainly, under the circumstances," agreed Broderick. "So old Gerry's postmaster instead of artist?"

"Both," she corrected. "He has lots of time to study, and it's good for him—the responsibility, I mean. You wouldn't know him."

"I suppose not," assented Broderick uneasily. He tried to reconcile his little circle of the universe, to make the chaotic jumble fall into place, and he failed. Gerald, Gerald the helpless, erratic, fantastic, impractical, joyous hearted, penniless artist, a person of matrimonial responsibility, a postmaster. But then, he remembered the young smooth haired person stamping letters. Of course Gerald had found his usual way out of the difficulty. He had become Pineville postmaster, a heavy work, and he drew the salary.

It was like Gerald. But there was Beatrice, Beatrice making biscuits. He looked at her with troubled eyes, seeing endless visions of Beatrice making biscuits throughout the years.

"Don't you miss New York?"

"Oh, so much," she said. "I'll never be happy until I get back."

"Have you given up your own work?"

"Only for the time being. I shall take it up again, of course. I shall have to."

Broderick's knees tightened in a sudden grip. So she was to work again, turn out her endless succession of little wall illustrations for second rate monthly magazines. Gerald would not mind, would not see the point. He would think he was being broadminded and benevolent to let his wife earn on her own art irrespective of him. But Beatrice saw the point.

He rose from his chair suddenly, his face white with the anger and love he had unthought. Before he could stop himself the words came leaping to his lips:

"Why did you do it?"

"The what?"

She stood beside the little bare kitchen table, her face raised to his, her eyes bright with startled wonderment at his tone.

"Why did you marry Gerald?"

"Marry Gerald? Why? Some one was coming along the white roadway. From the kitchen window two figures could be seen, and she pointed to them.

"There's Gerald, and that is his wife, my sister Beatrice. I am merely at present starting to the honeymoon. They brought me along to—well, to make the biscuits."

A minute later and Broderick met the bride couple on the wide veranda under the funny roof. The bride was the girl with the smooth dark hair who had been stamping letters, and she laughed at him.

"I knew who you were, but I wanted Gerald all to myself, and I knew Beatrice would take care of you."

"He did," answered Broderick happily, and as the rest went into the house he paused to brush off traces of flour from his coat collar. But Beatrice burned the biscuits.

Bad Handwriting. Sheridan's writing was a scandal to his school and puzzled the town. He once wrote a "pass" to Drury Lane, and the doorman stopped it, bearing it and immediately pronounced it to be a forgery because he could decipher it. To make matters worse, Sheridan was also uncertain in his spelling. A "which," "where" and a "whether" in his hands, for instance, were as often as not deprived of their "itches," and a "thing" was to him always a "think" and nothing more. The atrocious writing of celebrities recalls the claim once made on behalf of Baron Brummell that he wrote three hundred "one" which he alone could read, and other which his clerk could read and he couldn't and a third, which nobody could read, and the last named was his usual style. The writing master of the elder Dumas attributed the defeat of Napoleon at Waterloo to a badly scrawled message to Grouchy which was wrongly interpreted. The Duke of Wellington wrote an equally bad "let." Lord Palmerston was such a stickler for legibility of script that he would send a dispatch halfway around the world to have it clearly rewritten.—Fall Mail Gazette.

Colors and Smells. A celebrated chemist in Paris publishes the following concerning the relations of colors and smells:

Black of all colors absorbs smells most freely. Dark blue, green, yellow and red follow. White is least liable to absorb smells; hence its preference for nurses and cooks.

The scientist tells of a famous tenor whose voice loses all its timbre the moment he smells lilacs. Lilacs in a room are smells like his breath away.

Other scientists contribute these strange facts:

A young Italian girl suffering from hysteria and unable to sleep was cured by the application of musk to her nostrils, musk having the same effect upon her as a powerful narcotic.

A famous Italian surgeon, Scalliger, was nearly frightened to death when he accidentally inhaled the odor of a fly.

The Princess Lamballe got catarrhs when she smelled violets, and Catherine I. of Russia swooned when she saw a rose.—Baltimore News.

AL. H. WILSON

America's Foremost German Comedian Appearing at Masonic Theatre

This Week.

Like a breath from the vine-clad hills of Germany is the atmosphere of the new play in which Al. H. Wilson, America's foremost German comedian, will make his appearance at the Shubert Masonic Theatre Thursday, Friday, Saturday, October 5, 6, and 7. There is a charm in the German drama when presented by a comedian of Mr. Wilson's ability that is shared by no other kind of play. There is no staling to be dispensed by the stars, and the author's beautiful love songs flow while laughter reigns supreme.

Throughout the entire story of "A German Prince" run many bright threads of mirth and comedy, while the pictures of life it portrays are so to be faithful in every detail. The part portrayed by Mr. Wilson is that of an impoverished Prince of the German Empire, who, in the disguise of a courier, is engaged by a party of American tourists to act as their guide throughout Germany and the Austrian Tyrol. The love elements centers around the disguised Prince and a daring young American heiress who is a member of the party.

The music and comedy elements are mostly supplied by the star in the character of the courier who sings his way into the hearts of all who hear him. Manager Sidney R. Ellis is credited with providing a capital supporting company with brilliant electrical effects and beautiful costumes enhance the charms of the story. An added feature of the performance are the many stage sets which are said to be very elaborate. The first and second acts show interior views of the famous hotel Koblenz, while the third and fourth acts are exterior views of the Castle of Karlopp.

Mr. Wilson can always be depended upon for several new songs and he has not made an exception this season. For "A German Prince" he has composed the following songs which will be rendered during the performance: "Her Smile," "Still as the Night," "When You Part From the Girl You Love," "Songs of Fatherland," etc.

Go to see this play tomorrow or Saturday; you will enjoy it.

JEFFERSON COUNTY SCHOOL.

Kentucky Out of Step With the March of Education.

If you had not driven twelve miles from big, throbbing, pulsing Louisville along perfect roads sprinkled with oil you would think you were far out in some rural community when you gaze at Rocky Hill school. It seems impossible for such a schoolhouse to be tolerated in a county as rich and prosperous as Jefferson.

Its style of architecture is severely simple. This idea of extreme simplicity is carried out in the veranda of red corrugated iron supported on plain 2 by 4 studs.

If the building, the main building, lacks beauty, the old coal house is much worse. It looks as if after years of wear and tear the neighbors had felt sorry for it and had had something of a donation party. This, of course, is merely a nuisance, but it is the only possible solution to the general makeup of the building. Evidently one neighbor had donated some red roofing tin. Another neighbor, seeing the need of a door, had sent over one that had been cut "kinder whopper jawed" and would

THE DOOR WAS "KINDER WHOPPER JAWED" and fit anywhere, there having no hinges, it had been tacked on anyway and left standing wide open for the weeds to grow about it.

Jefferson county, with its trolley lines, its splendid roads, its wealth, should be an object lesson to the rest of the state in schools and school buildings, but she is just where the others are.

The whole state is out of step with the march of education.

MOVED THE LECTURER.

Church Too Good For Him, but Schoolhouse Was Just the Place.

The man who was to give an illustrated lecture at Deer Creek last on the steps of the Deer Creek church with his grips and gas drums about him. Seven-thirty came and went; the early summer twilight deepened while a family of screech owls discussed their affairs under their breath; 8 o'clock came and still no audience. A longy rattled on the road below, and a voice called shrilly:

"Hello! Anybody up there?"

"Yes, and I want to get in to put my lantern in place," answered the lecturer.

"Didn't you hear that we had changed the place?" queried the voice. "No."

"Well, we did. You better get your things in your wagon and come down to the schoolhouse, half a mile down the road, for the folks is there waiting for you."

"How did you happen to change the place of the lecture at the last moment?"

"It was this way: You see, we knew you had to have a big light in your lantern—oil or kerosene—or ether—and we knew, too, that you had to have a sheet or something big and white to throw the pictures on to and it would have to be tacked on to the wall. We have just had put down a brand new carpet on the church and papered the walls, so we were afraid you would spill oil on the carpet or punch holes in the new wall paper tacking up your sheet. You see, we were afraid you'd hurt the church some way, so we moved you down here because you couldn't hurt the schoolhouse at all."

The Boy Understood. One of the educational committee in Louisville had planned on his button and went out onto the street for a paper. While the boy was counting out the pennies in change he caught sight of the white and blue button. He smiled and got onto his tiptoes and read slowly:

"My 4 for improvement Kentucky schools."

Again he smiled, and reaching out a grimy paw, exclaimed:

"Put it there and shake. I'm with you fellows, all right."

MORGAN'S FAIR LIBRARIAN.

Miss Belle De Costa Green an Authority on Rare Books.

Wherever there is an auction sale of rare books or valuable engravings one sees in the group of bibliophiles, college professors, curators of museums and collectors who fill the gallery the slight, girlish figure of Miss Belle Green, librarian for J. Pierpont Morgan. Representing one of the richest men in the world and perhaps the most persistent and determined collector of books in the group of bibliophiles, she lives with an experienced man, not to speak of a girl who is still in her twenties. Her competitors are men like Joseph E. Widener of Philadelphia, Walter Hill, the dealer from Chicago; Herbert Putnam, librarian of congress; George D. Smith, who, representing Henry E. Huntington, secured the Gutenberg Bible for $50,000.

Miss Morgan's library has been in charge of Mr. Morgan's library for the past six years. She is its guardian and its preserver in every sense and holds the key against all comers, even Mr. Morgan's own family, unless that gentleman himself is present.

Coming Mr. Morgan's librarian Miss Green spent several years in studying rare books, and there is no one of her own sex who equals her in judgment of their value. She lives with her mother in a studio apartment within a stone's throw of her daily work—Metropolitan Magazine.

Electricity In the Air. We have a comparatively new trouble with our teeth in which the teeth loosen in the jaw without apparent cause and drop out, leaving the dentist in mystery. In these recent years the general tendency toward baldness has been marked as unusually apparent. Are the electric waves used night and day in wireless telegraphy a cause? Professor Henslingmuller suspects they may be. The effect of electrolysis is marked as it escapes from the cables at a power station. He says that in the sending of a wireless message only one mile that portion of the electrical energy used is only one three-hundred-millionths of the energy expended. The rest goes into the air—Chicago Tribune.

Better Than Kopenick. An individual at Temesvar has surpassed the famous Captain von Kopenick; in fact, the German shoemaker engaged a gang of thirty workmen, went to a distillery which was closed and factored them to dismantle it. Following this exploit he demolished a fountain and then sold it with the distillery fittings for old metal. Next he turned his operations upon an avenue and cut down all the trees and sold the wood to a carpenter. Then he vanished into space, and the good people of Temesvar are still in a state of ferment—London Globe.

NATURE'S LULLABY.
A NOISE me of a hidden trout
In the leafy month of June
That to the sleeping woods all night
Sings a quiet tune.
—Coleridge.

A FAREWELL.
My farewell child, I have no song to give you,
No lark could pipe in skies so dull and gray.
Yet, if you will, one quiet hint I'll leave you
For every day.

I'll tell you how to sing a clearer carol
Than lark who hails the dawn of bright day,
To earn yourself a purer poet's laurel
Than Shakespeare's crown.

Be good, sweet maid, and let who can be clever.
Do lovely things, not dream them, all day long,
And so make life and death and that forgotten
One grand sweet song.
—Charles Kingsley.

PROGRESS.
I ORD, grant us eyes to see
Within the seed a tree,
Within the glowing egg a bird,
Within the shroud a butterfly.
—Christina Rossetti.
